Second only to the United Kingdom, Canada has been a principal source of mechanized transport for the armed services of the British Commonwealth.

Before the war aircraft production was a minor industry in Canada, employing only about 1,000 workers and producing about 40 airplanes a year. By 1943, the annual rate of output reached about 4,000 planes and more than 120,000 men and women were employed. By the end of May, 1945, a total of 15,905 aircraft had been produced.

Ninth Victory Loan Planned

OTTAWA Aug 14 (CP) — The surrender of Japan will not mean that Canada's victory loans, held at six-month intervals since 1940, will be discontinued, a national war finance committee spokesman said today.

The next loan, the 9th Victory Loan, will be held in the latter part of October. Finance Minister Ilsley will issue a statement at the end of this month fixing the amount of the loan and the date of the opening of the campaign.

The 8th loan held in May, was for a minimum of $1,350,000,000, and was the greatest public borrowing operation ever attempted in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Weise returned on Tuesday morning after having spent their holidays with friends.

Commendable Co-operation

AN EXAMPLE OF PRACTICAL co-operation which has received commendation from the press and from many other sources, is the present scheme for the exchange of labour between farmers of the Prairie Provinces and of Ontario during the harvest seasons in these two sections of the country. This year a number of Western farmers went to Ontario in 1942 to spend about a month helping with the harvest there. It is expected that, in turn, there will be a movement of farmers from the East when the crop here is ready to be taken in. Shortage of labour has been one of the most acute of the many problems with which farmers have had to contend during the difficult years since 1939. The war reduced farm man-power by one-quarter and a large number of those who left the farms were young men of military age, representing the most valuable type of help.

The Need For Greater Unity

There have been many schemes for alleviating the labour shortage, but most of these have provided only unskilled help and have not been at all times satisfactory to the farmer during the rush of the harvest season. The plan for the exchange of labour between experienced farmers of the East and West eliminates this disadvantage and provides skilled help for the harvest in many parts of the country. In addition to the very practical value of the scheme, in providing much-needed farm labour, it has been strongly commended as an example of the type of co-operation which is needed on a much larger scale, between all parts of the Dominion, if we are to continue to grow as a nation. One of the greatest obstacles to national unity is the extent of our country. We are divided, by the geography of the land, into sections, and there is need to nullify the geographical barriers, and to break down the prejudices and misconceptions which stand in the way of complete accord.

May Lead To Desired Ends

It has been observed that the exchange of farm labour between East and West is one very practical way of bringing these two sections of the country into closer understanding. A farmer from the West, who spends several weeks working on a farm in Ontario, is likely to return with a clearer understanding of the problems and of the point of view of the man with whom he has worked; and the same would be true of the farmer from the East, who comes to work on the Prairies. For many years there has been a tendency for the Western farmer to question certain "anecdotes" placed on some farm products in the East, while farmers in Ontario have not always looked with favor on "bonuses" and other measures designed to improve conditions in the Prairie Provinces. Agriculture is one of our largest industries, and if better understanding and closer co-operation is achieved between the farmers of the West and East through the exchange of labour, it may be an important step towards attaining the complete national unity which is desired by all thinking Canadians.

Jet-Propelled Auto

Expected To Attain Speed Of About 530 Miles Per Hour

Lt. Robert Morgan, 26, British Air Arm pilot, disclosed that he and associates had developed a jet-propelled auto which they hoped to drive at a speed of approximately 520 miles an hour. It consists of a single giant wheel, 12 feet in diameter, covered by a streamlined pear-shaped body which is 23 feet long and 15 feet high. The lone wheel will revolve on oil bearings and Morgan will drive from a seat inside the wheel.

CLEARED MATTER UP

When subscribers on a party line at North Bay, Ont., complained to the telephone company that somebody was constantly listening in, it didn't take a trouble shooter long to discover what the difficulty was. In one home on the line an elderly woman was using the phone receiver as a darning egg to mend stockings.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q.—I very recently arrived in Canada with a group of English war brides. I would like to get some information on your price control regulations.

A.—British war brides, who want information on price ceilings, and who like to keep up-to-date on regulations, should write to the Consumer Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Ottawa, for literature relating to these subjects.

Q.—Will pork spare ribs be included in rationed meats?

A.—Pork spare ribs are not rationed.

Q.—Where do I take the "short leave" ration cards that my son left when he was home on his last leave?

A.—You take them to your local ration board where they will exchange them for coupons that you may use for rationed food.

Q.—Is it right that one can now move to Winnipeg and rent or occupy family quarters without a permit from the Administrator of Emergency Shelter?

A.—Yes, Winnipeg has now been included in the list of cities which have declared Emergency Shelter Areas. The eight areas are Victoria, Vancouver, New Westminster, Winnipeg, Hamilton, Toronto, Ottawa and Hull.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlet "Consumers' News" or the Blue Book in which you keep track of your ceiling prices, mentioning the name of this paper to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office in your province.

SMILE AWHILE

"What's your name?" the grocer asked the young applicant for the job.

"Scott—Walter Scott," the boy replied.

"That's a pretty well-known name," remarked the grocer, smiling.

"It ought to be," the boy said proudly, "I've been delivering groceries around here for two years."

Lady Gush: "Can you imagine anything more terrible than the time when a great singer realizes that she is losing her voice?"

Professor: "Yes, madam, the time when she can't realize it."

The big Irish sergeant, officiating as master of ceremonies at the military ball, announced: "The next number will be a snake dance."

"It says, sergeant," asked a buck private, "what's a snake dance?"

The sergeant gave the private a withering look.

"It's to give them that snake in an opportunity to snake out," he replied.

Doctor: The thing for you to do is to stop thinking about yourself—to bury yourself in your work.

Patient: Gosh! And me a concrete mixer.

"How did you know your husband was 800 playing cards?"

"He talks in his sleep."

"How did you get it away from him?"

"I walk in his sleep."

"Come, come, Joan, surely you know if the world is round or square? . . . Mary, tell her!"

"It's crooked, teacher," said Mary drily.

Pat joined the engineers and was learning bridge building. At a single plank Pat paused doubtfully.

What's the matter, Pat? said the instructor, "afraid to walk on it?"

"No," replied Pat, "I'm not afraid to walk on it. What I'm afraid of is walking off it."

Keeps Lone Vigil

News Comes From A Man Who Is Stationed In Darkest Africa

From the heart of darkest Africa—as the missionaries used to call it—comes news of the loneliest man in the British Army.

His black boys call him "Bim-bash! Weekes," but the army lists him as Capt. H. R. Weekes, of the Sudan Defence Force. Nearly 1,000 miles from the nearest outpost, this 21-year-old Robinson Crusoe has kept his remote vigil in the mountains of the moon for 18 months and still likes it.

Tidings of this guardian of the Empire were brought to London by Capt. Geoffrey Edwards, former newspaperman, now public relations officer in the Middle East Command, who met Weekes on the wind-bitten Boma plateau which dominates the secret slave trade routes into Abyssinia.

Capt. Weekes lives in a lion-skin hut, and spends his leisure hunting butterflies and exotic wild birds. The rarest ones he sends to the British museum. For food he often has a tasty gazelle steak, washed down with beer brought from the Belgian Congo at the other end of Africa.

The end of Capt. Edwards' account was typically British. After three days' gathering of the only white men in an area as big as Nova Scotia—when it came to saying goodbye Capt. Edwards said: "Well, old chap, we must meet and have one when we get back to town."

"Sure," said Weekes, "how do I get in touch with you back home?"

"Either at the News Chronicle or at my home in Ferring-on-Sea in Sussex," said Edwards.

"Ferring?" Weekes asked, "I live there, too."

And they found—like so many Englishmen who have never been properly introduced—that they live on the same street.

Humor Of London

Was Noted In A Variety Of Ways On VE Day

A little footnote on VE day as it appeared to me. You've heard all about the milling millions, their good nature, the resounding delight with which the Royal Family were greeted as they came again, and again to the balcony of their home. But I wonder if anyone told you that one of the few buses plunging their way down Piccadilly bore the triumphant legend in chalk—"The Bus That Helped Win the War."

And, in the memory of all—there was the poster chalked up by a newsboy on his blackboard in Trafalgar Square: "There'll always be an Englishman there three times including once at Footfall. (Three goals to nothing)."—BBC London Letter.

Has New Method

Dentist In Texas Uses Compressed Air For Drilling Teeth

Dr. Robert B. Black, of Corpus Christi, Tex., has developed a new method of drilling teeth which employs a very fine, almost pin-point stream of compressed air carrying a fine abrasive.

The apparatus has no moving parts. Moving parts in conventional drills cause the grinding sound, the heat, the vibration and the pain objected to by patients. Dr. Black said in an article in the Journal of the American Dental Association.

"Patients upon whom this instrument has been used have a definite preference for it," he said.

"You have no idea how grand just the word 'Canada' sounded when we were so far from home," stated Pte. Gladys I. Hannah of 844 Alder Ave., Moose Jaw, Sask., who has recently returned from overseas. "It's grand to be back." Pte. Hannah enlisted in the Canadian Women's Army Corps in July, 1942 and received her Basic Training in Regina, Sask. Later she was posted to Q.M. Stores, where she worked until she went on a recruiting tour with a CWAC Recruiting Unit. Next came an Instructor's Course at St. Anne de Bellevue, Que., where she remained as an instructor for ten months. At the completion of a Stenographer's Course, Pte. Hannah received a posting as a filing clerk at Farnham, Que. She proceeded overseas in Sept. in 1944. "We did the usual sight-seeing while in London," Pte. Hannah said, "and we made use of our longer leaves by visiting other parts of the British Isles; such as Yorkshire and Scotland." At present Pte. Hannah is a filing clerk with the Central Registry, No. 12 District Depot, Regina, Sask.

HOME AWAY FROM HOME IN BELGIUM

The task of trying to make a roughly constructed Army Nissen hut a "Home away from home" is not the easiest in the world, but members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps stationed in Belgium have been doing just that and the results they have achieved are truly astounding. The huts, constructed of corrugated sheet metal, in long cylindrical shapes, do not lend themselves readily to the home touch, but under the nimble fingers of the Army girls they have taken on bright and cheery atmospheres. The drabness of long rows of beds, covered with gray army blankets has been relieved by the addition of gaily colored patchwork quilts; a girl in the Red Cross. Friendly Belgian citizens have contributed individual bar racks and bedside tables. These are invariably topped with pictures from home, and gay little souvenirs picked up in a score of countries. Of interest to friends in Saskatchewan, is the military wedding ceremony held in England recently, when Sgt. Margaret H. Glover, CWAC, Genavon, Sask., became the bride of CQMS John P. Johnson of Moose Jaw, Sask. Sgt. Kay Kiddie, CWAC of Calgary, Alta., was the bride's only attendant, and Mr. H. Bates, of Derby, England, uncle of the bride, was best man. The bride and groom wore their khaki uniforms. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Bates. Sgt. Glover enlisted in the Canadian Women's Army Corps in April, 1942. She has been serving overseas for the past two and a half years, and is employed as superintending clerk in the Claims Section of Canadian Military Headquarters, London.

The Perfect Thirst Quencher

"SALADA" Iced Tea

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY ASSIGNMENT

—By—

BERT R. FERRIS

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

"Well, you don't need to tell the neighbors about it."

"I'll tell whomever I please about it! I'll tell the whole coked-out world about it! I'm through playing second fiddle to your silly old copy desk."

"But, honey—"

"And you don't need to tell, honey me, either. You can go to China and cover your crazy old war and forget about marrying me. You can stay here and marry me and forget about your crazy old war. That's the way it is—take it or leave it."

Eddie Mackinson inhaled thoughtfully. Sue was right all right. In fact she was hopping mad, and the usual technique was getting him nowhere tonight. He decided on a new angle.

"Listen, Sue," he said soberly. "I'm a newspaper man. Making a deadline is all I know. I can, perhaps, find a job more to your liking. If I can't, there's always the W.P.A. But don't you see, no matter what I do, I'll still be a newspaper man. That can't be changed. Being a newspaper man is as much a part of me as my left eyeball. It isn't that I wouldn't chuck the paper for you; I would. But chucking the paper won't solve the problem."

"Well," snapped Sue, "you would at least be home once in a while. What in heaven's name is the sense in getting married if your husband is going to be gone all the time hanging—a dead-line?"

"That's what I'm trying to explain to you, honey," continued Eddie patiently. "When this war is washed up I'll be sitting pretty with a by-line, and—"

"Yes, you'll be sitting pretty in a wheel chair, or maybe lying pretty in a nice hole in the ground. Even if you don't get crippled or killed, you'll only be sitting pretty with some heathen in some ungodly place decides to carve his initials into some other heathen. Then that fat-headed boss of yours will decide there's a story lurking in the bushes and Eddie Mackinson, the boy reporter, will be dispatched to bring it back alive. No, Eddie, it's just no go. Choose me or the war—you can't have both."

Eddie ground out his cigarette. "O.K., baby," he grinned. "Maybe I'll be seeing you around after peace is declared. It's been nice knowing you." He kissed the back of her neck. At the door he turned. "Luck to you, sugar," he whispered and closed the door softly.

For a long time Sue stood motionless. She blinked hard and fast, but the tears came spilling from under her dark lashes.

"He'll come back," she sobbed. "He won't leave like this. He'll come back. No he won't," she contradicted in the next breath. "The mulish-headed toad never will return. I'll have to go after him. Darn him, anyway! Of all the men in New York why do I have to love him?"

If she hurried she would find him at the "Thirty Club." He would stop there to say good-bye to his old cronies.

Beneath powder and rouge she buried all traces of the tears. Why had she been such a fool? She had known all along what her decision would be. He was right, of course; his paper was a part of him, and she loved him the more for it. She wouldn't have him different for the world. He couldn't help being Eddie Mackinson, and it was Eddie Mackinson she loved. She snatched up her hat and opened the door.

"Hello," said Eddie easily. "Going out?"

"Yes. Out after you, you owe-faced, mule-headed—oh, Eddie, you're the stubbornest human being I've ever met!"

"Well, can you beat that?" exclaimed Eddie. "Here I go and quit a perfectly swell job, put the skids under the opportunity of a lifetime, and—"

"Eddie, you didn't!"

"Oh, but I did. Casey had spasms, but I told—"

"But you haven't had time to go to the office and get back here."

"Telephone, my sweet—I telephoned. I didn't have nerve enough to tell Casey to his face that I was quitting, so I called him from the drug store on the corner."

"But you must do that. I didn't mean what I said. I was just angry and hurt and jealous of your old paper, but I was wrong. This is your big chance and you can't turn it down."

"You said—"

"I don't care what I said. I take it all back. I'll marry you. Eddie! I'll marry you right now. Hurry and call Casey. Tell him you've changed your mind. Tell him anything, only go before he gives that job to someone else."

"Well," said Eddie slowly, "I won't call him. But if you really feel that way about it, I'll run down to the office and talk to Casey."

Sue pushed him along the hall. "Hurry, Eddie," she said, "if you lose that assignment I'll never forgive myself!"

"Oh, I'll fix things up with Casey, O.K. When I get back we'll celebrate."

After he had gone Sue remembered there was no ginger ale. She hurried to the drug store on the corner. "Two bottles of ginger ale, please, and see that there is a nickel in my change. I want to make a phone call."

"Sorry, miss," the clerk replied, "phone's out of order."

Market For Meat

Profitable Market For Beef and Bacon in Britain For Some Time To Come

J. G. Taggart, chairman of the Canadian meat board, said in an interview he was confident that "the Canadian farmer can find a profitable market for Canadian beef and bacon in Britain for the next 10 years."

He believed Canadian livestock producers could expand output of both beef and bacon "without fear of depressing the market price below a fair and reasonable margin of profit."

Discussing post-war possibilities the meat board chairman said Canada is the only country in the world with more than two-thirds of her consumption of bacon. Britons had become so accustomed to asking for Canadian meat that Danish exporters feared they would never be able to fully recover their British trade when they again are able to export.

Lapin is the French word for rabbit, and it is sometimes applied to rabbit fur.

Arround the country: Sixty years after, Robert G. Jackson of Indian Head, Sask., survivor of the Indian battles, has just been presented with the Red Rebellion Medal for his services... who can match this? Mrs. Edward Letang, 95, showed the folks how to step dance at her birthday party in Arnprior, Ont. ... Warton, Ont., has the most novel animals; the other day, folks at the beach were surprised to see a cat amble down to the water, plunge in and go for a swim... the most man in the world, claims the P.E.I. Farmer, is the guy who visited O'Leary one night recently, stole a set of false teeth belonging to an old, white-haired lady, who owing to her age can't get an impression for a new plate now... Reinhold Eckstein of the Mohawk, Sask., district had tough luck; suffered a 50% loss Monday; lost his barn by lightning Wednesday and had a second hail loss Friday... Miss Pearl Gwynne at Quevillon, Ont., has a hotbeds in her garden measuring 120 to 128 inches in height... Not a fish story; a Mother Skunk and four baby skunks wandered down Wellington Street at Brampton, Ont., trying to cross the street in the traffic; two got separated, hid under a verandah, and were finally shot... In a letter to the Cardston Alta, News, Joe Norwick told farmers in the district: "Why don't you that combined your crops get busy right now and cut all of these weeds you see on the road and in your fields and get it in a stack. Your cattle would enjoy it this next winter."

Y. You can't tell G. F. Berryman of Pentstemon, B.C., there is no such thing as Ogopogo, the sea monster. He was supervising irrigation in B. Kerner's orchard and was called to the cliff edge and saw this "some-thing" monster, 90 feet long, traveling at 30 to 40 miles an hour, alternately curving into a ball, swerving, etc. He had another man saw the thing in the middle of the lake and they were plumb sober. It had a head something like a sheep, according to the story told the Hesperian.

Friends in the country are friends: When Bob Waldorf lay 'ill in the Nipawin (Sask.) Union hospital, men gathered on his farm with plows and women with lunch baskets. No less than 17 tractors and plows were lined up, and in less than three hours the 100-acre field had been plowed.

Construction of a 103-mile gas pipeline at a cost of $1,000,000 from the Viking gas field to central Alberta towns and cities is under consideration by Northwest Territories of Edmonton. As a twenty-year franchise is needed to undertake the project, ratepayers on the various towns to be serviced are to have votes to ratify the proposition. Biggest bottleneck is said to be supply of trained engineers.

Rural electrification proceeds in Manitoba. Seven areas have been selected as first testing grounds, which by early December will have electric power in 670 farm homes. Largest area among those selected in municipality of Roland, where 310 applications for service have been signed. First expenditure will be $10,000.

A Bracebridge, Ont., dentist, Dr. L. N. Ryan thinks the changeable weather this summer is hard on teeth, but to cool and soothe them, sets up the warning twinges. He proves his point by the rush of patients he has had.

The Hanover (Nort.) Post editor had a vacation in the U.S.A., never saw a single Union Jack displayed, but on this side—plenty of Stars and Stripes. Points to an editorial in the Amherstburg Echo which says: "The complaint is again heard that some people in this district are trying to woo the American tourist business with the excessive use of American flags. It has been pointed out, time and time again, that most Americans would much prefer to see Canadian flags than British flags when they visit this country on a holiday and do not appreciate too much waving. Make them welcome—but let them know that it is the Canadian flag, the best form of reception possible."

It has been found that tomato culture under glass produces 10 times the average field crop, or about 10,000 plants to the acre.

Big Factor In War

Allies' Weather Forecasts Covered Millions Of Square Miles

Not even a flash of lightning far out over the Atlantic ocean could escape the "magic eyes" of weather directives whose sharp predictions were a big factor in the crushing defeat of Germany.

Throughout the war in Europe, weather and storms within a range of 1,500 miles in all directions were "watched" and plotted 24 hours a day from a group of camouflaged huts on the outskirts of Dunstable, Bedfordshire, Eng.

This was the Allies' central forecasting station, where vital weather data was collected, analyzed and circulated. Their daily reports covered millions of square miles.

Details of air conditions 10 miles up were received on a mechanically operated gadget weighing less than four pounds.

A special storm-location unit, where specially designed radio direction finders equipped with television tubes were used, a crew of girls sat all night in a semi-dark room, watching a tiny blue dot flicker and dance in the centre of a large screen called the "magic eye".

A flash of lightning caused the spot to flash out vividly across the screen, which was calibrated for bearing readings.

The operator was linked by direct telephone circuits with three other stations in Scotland, Northern Ireland and Southern England. When he shouted "now," three colleagues gave him readings of their machines. A plot of four bearings gave the location of the storm.

Made Wrong Guess

Japanese War Lords Were Out In Their Calculations

Like the Germans, the Japanese gambled on blitzkrieg. If they could not win a quick war, they hoped to stalemate a long one. Like the Germans, they were deluded by their own propaganda.

They did not believe that Britain and the United States had the industry to overcome the fanaticism of Samurais and Shinto and keep them until they were wholly defeated and begging for terms.

The majestic distances of the Pacific, on which they relied so heavily, have now served to protect them from it did us from their attack on Pearl Harbor—New York Times.

Speaks For Nations

Big Three Assumes Responsibility In Name Of The People

Of the Big Three of six months ago, only Stalin remains. Two of the chief factors in the greatest drama of history have made place for untamed men. The two voices that spoke for the democratic hosts as the war moved to its climax will not be heard in the peace conference.

This is bound to make a difference. But the eclipse of the giants only re-emphasizes that the Big Three are not men but nations. Great Britain, like the United States, wields power and assumes responsibility in the name of the people, and it is the will and character of the people that determine its place and its policy. The character of the British people is moderation, and it is the moderation that has been the basis of popular support as it takes on an unfinished war and the immense tasks of reconstruction, at home and abroad. Britain may play its peace part even greater role than she has played in war—New York Times.

Calls For Courage

Tremendous Hazards Are Faced By Crew Of Submarine

The submarine service calls for cold-courage and prompt efficiency in a special degree. Some experts decided after the last war that submarine had their day. The Royal Navy's submarines have in this war emphatically upset that theory. Their contribution to final victory in Europe, in a variety of ways but especially in assisting the naval blockade and cutting Germany's supply lines in North Africa, has been an invaluable one, and probably the British submarine service has paid a higher price proportionately than any other. One need only read "His Majesty's Submarines" to realize what tremendous hazards the submariners had to face. Yet it was the rarest thing for a man in that service to ask as he was entitled to, to be returned to general service. On one occasion in the Mediterranean a British submarine was being heavily depth-charged. Batteries were leaking gas, after-hydroplanes were out of action, lightning was smashed, the depth of the submarine unknown. "At one moment," wrote the commanding officer in his report, "when I was uncertain whether I was on the bottom or not (and felt more than a little worried), I was handed a chit on which was written: 'J. J. J. J. J. J. A.B. requests to go back to general service.' This relieved the tension no end."

NEED MORE WOOL

Despite the end of the European war, the demand for wool continues at a high rate, and for 1945 as a whole appears likely to equal 1944. Remaining stocks of about 60 million pounds of wool by the U. S. Defense Supplies' Corporation were withdrawn from the public sale last May, and probably will be disposed of under "lend-lease." This stockpile originally totalled 330 million pounds.

BACK IN LONDON

The latest picture belonging to the National Gallery—the 13-foot square Charles I by Van Dyck—is back in London from its hiding place in North Wales. The painting was removed before the war and stored in caves in Wales along with 2,000 other gems from the gallery.

Canadian Potatoes

A Wild Demand For Canadian Certified Seed

Inquiries for Canadian field crop and vegetable seeds have come from almost every country of Europe, and since V-E day the office of the Plant Protection Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, has been receiving requests from several parts of the world for Canadian Certified Seed Potatoes. By intensive work, Canadian scientists have improved the quality of most of the imported seeds, so that today Canada, formerly a minor factor in vegetable seed production, is an important producer of viable seed.

In the demand for potato seed, history is repeating itself. Louis XVI of France (1754-1793) offered a prize to any subject who could find a crop that would produce large quantities of food on a small area. A man named Parmentier came forward with the potato and demonstrated that huge quantities of food could be produced from one acre.

From the 1944 crop, Canada exported about three and one-half million bushels of certified seed to the United States, Uruguay, South Africa, Cuba, Venezuela, Bermuda, West Indies, France, Dominican Republic, Newfoundland, and even to Iceland. Most of the Canadian certified seed potatoes exported are grown in the Maritime provinces.

2-4-D

The importance of DDT in controlling insects is well known to most farmers. At least, it soon will be, since limited quantities are now or are about to be available for use in stables, dairies, etc. If preliminary experiments are confirmed, 2-4-D, or if the reader disdains mechanical 2-4 dichlorophenylacetic acid, will be equally important in weed control.
It will destroy a wide variety of annual and perennial weeds, but appears to be harmless to grasses.
Extensive experiments by Provincial and Dominion Departments of Agriculture are in progress and we await the results with interest.

Farm Granaries, Again!
At this season, with most granaries empty, farmers may do much to prevent later losses from heating and infestation of farm-stored grain.
Empty granaries should be thoroughly cleaned. Brush down walls and sweep floor with damp sawdust;
then sprinkle a little hydrated lime over the floor and sweep it about to fill all cracks. Repair leaky roofs, walls, and especially floors. Where floors, either wooden or concrete, rest directly on the ground, a covering of moisture-proof paper over the floor and extending up the walls for a foot or so will help to exclude ground moisture. Provide for good ventilation over the surface of the grain. A little effort now may save a lot of trouble later.
